City Manager Makes Semi-Annual Report on Condition City Affairs

Improvements Rapidly Nearing Completion

PAVING BEING RUSHED

Tests Show Wells in Excellent Condition; Adequate Water Supply.

June 13, 1927.

The Honorable City Commission,
St. Cloud, Florida.
Gentlemen:—

While the charter provides that the city manager shall make a semi-annual report in the months of January and July, yet I feel that there are several important measures which should be set before you at this time, so that preparation can be made to arrive at the necessary decisions, and if it is deemed necessary by you to have the report read again at the regular monthly meeting in July, to comply with the charter requirements, it will be all ready, and decisions arrived at can be appealed if necessary.

In the first place I wish that you would arrive at a decision as to the present city manager. As you are aware, my bond expired on June 1st, 1927, and was rewritten so that the city would have the protection prescribed, and in the rewriting, the following was copied from the bond of last year into the new bond. The said George M. Mitchell has been appointed city manager for the term beginning June 1, 1927 and ending June 1, 1928. I know that this phrasing was overlooked in the drawing of the bond, but appointment should either be made to cover the period limited in the bond, or else action should be taken to make the bond coincide with whatever period is to be the appointment to cover. As you know, we are entering on another period of improvements, and while you have already authorized me to take the necessary steps, which I have done, yet I feel that you should, in fairness to me, make some definite appointment, instead of the day by day arrangements we are now working under.

I am not attempting to give you an extensive financial report, as I expect that you will have the report of the auditor within the next two weeks, which will give in detail a mass of figures in which you are vitally interested, and I do not have a copy of these figures so that I can present them to you at th epresent time.

In brief, we had in the Peoples Bank, when they closed after they had charged to our account several out-standing obligations, in the various funds, $24,829.97, for which we are receiving certificate of deposit. We had overdrafts of $10,938.97, which I am convinced, would not have been if the usual methods of proceedure by the bank had been followed out, and I am not attempting to place any blame on anyone; but, we had in the bank $14,034.49, in various funds, against which these overdrafts should have been charged. In this connection I wish to call a meeting of the Commission within the next few days, preferable Wednesday morning, June 15th, a. m., is convenient to you all, so that we can decide on the matters of financing the interest payments on bond issues which will soon be due. I have prepared the amount which we will be obliged to raise, and I wish to go into detail with you, plans which I have prepared so that when the date of payment arrives, we will not be unprepared, and in the meantime we can take the steps necessary.

In general, the paving and storm sewers have been completed on four avenues, and we hope to be able to start the construction of the white way early in July, although the matter of financing of this work is another point I wish to take up with you at the meeting to be held either Wednesday, as mentioned above, or at such date as you may deem convenient.

New York avenue has been completed, except the inter-section with the boulevard, and the work is now going on at Carolina avenue, and I hope that when the job is completed of paving, that the boulevard will be sufficiently far along so that at least the loop between Massachusetts and Indiana avenues can be completed without any delay; and that by the time this is completed that we will have sufficient filling done with the dredge so that we can proceed with more paving on the boulevard. We are keeping the exact costs and yardage attained by the dredge, and will submit to you at another meeting, when the work is far enough along so that we will strike a fair average, and know what it is really accomplishing.

As to the power house, as you know,

TRIBUNE FAMILY ENJOY FINE ROCKLEDGE MELONS

Through the courtesy of Mr. Henry Bourinot, president of the Cocoa-Rockledge Land Co., Inc., of Rockledge, Fla., the entire force of the St. Cloud Tribune Company were treated to a feast of delicious watermelons fresh from the famous Rockledge farms section on the East Coast.

Mr. Bourinot and associates have the right idea in their plan for the development of Florida land, by turning out producing farms for the investors. Florida's wealth lies not only in her delightful climate, but in her rich soil as well, and these far-seeing business men are to be commended for their endeavors along this line.

COMRADE FREDERICK C. MASON

Porter Addresses Chamber Commerce On the Question of Insurance Rating

It is surprising the way interest keeps up in the chamber of commerce. The Wednesday luncheon and business meeting was presided over by the president Lenox Trickle. All remained standing while grace was spoken by Dr. Wm. Landiss.

After the minutes were approved, Secretary C. L. Wheat announced that all organizations have always been welcome to the use of the rooms and equipment of the chamber of commerce when proper requests have been made to the board of governors or the secretary. This same courtesy will be extended to any who desire the use of same, upon request being left with the secretary so that no mistake be made.

S. W. Porter was requested to give a five minute talk and chose as his own subject, "Fire Insurance." This, he said, was a question of vital importance to the community. So often the question is asked, "What makes insurance so high in the south? Upon investigation, Mr. Porter said that he found our city had not been re-rated since 1924. Since that time we have installed miles of water mains with fire hydrants throughout the city, and two wells for water supply instead of one, which makes fire protection much greater. He suggested that the matter be taken up with the rating bureau by the chamber of commerce and city commission and that they have the city re-rated so that the entire community may be benefited. Mr. Porter cited Orlando as one instance that he knew of, that had received relief from a high insurance rate. President Trickle stated that in a town where he formerly lived there was a ten per cent reduction in insurance rate after re-rating. The chair appointed S. W. Porter, Wm. Landiss and J. F. Bailey as a committee to investigate the matter.

S. W. Porter spoke of a left over fund that was raised as a band fund when he was chairman and deposited in the Bank of St. Cloud. The two dividend checks amounting to $35.74 have been voted to be turned over to the chamber of commerce to apply on the expenses of the float for the Fourth of July celebration parade in Kissimmee.

County Agricultural agent, June Gunn, gave an interesting account of the trucking activities in Osceola county this season. He had a report from the express agent at Kissimmee of the amount of vegetables shipped in express cars which showed that from October to May there were 20,500 crates. This does not include the amount sent by truck to Orlando, Haines City and other places. He believes that this time next year there will be much more land under cultivation. Optimism is what we need. He said he was reminded of a story he heard recently giving the definition of a pessimist and an optimist. (A pessimist misses the better things of life; an optimist meets a bear at the door at night and steps out the next morning wearing a fur coat.

WHAT SHALL IT BE?

The editor chanced the other day to go into a wayside store filling station, and confronted with the following slogan, "Cheapness is not based on what you pay, but what you get for what you pay." Having seen this little slogan we cannot help but apply this same reasoning to the conduct of affairs of the commonwealth.

St. Cloud is proposing the improvement of the main thoroughfare, Tenth street, and in view of the contemplated improvement, some opinions as to the correct way to improve this street have been voiced around. Tenth street is and will be the main artery of travel for a long time to come, and must needs be substaintially and permanently paved.

One idea that has been advanced in regard to this improvement has been to put down a semi-permanent material to reduce the cost. How foolish a step this would be, when we all know and appreciate that these surface treatment jobs are a source of constant maintenance, cannot be cleaned, and do not last, and become a liability long before they can be paid for. You cannot expect these types of streets to outlive the date of the bonds. Who wants to be paying bonds on a street that has worn out. We have already had a lesson along this line, in the St. Cloud-Melbourne highway.

The city has chosen a good, permanent, type of pavement for most of its streets. So where is the logic in asking them to even consider a cheap, temporary type for our main street—the front yard of St. Cloud—where all the folks may judge what kind of a town we are by the cheapness of our improvements; or the good substantial city we are by the best type of roads.

A man was going through a grave yard in Scotland recently, and came to a grave with the following inscription on it: "My God, She Is Thin." He asked the Sexton why such an inscription was used. The Sexton explained that the family who put this grave in were rather frugal, and in an attempt to get a reasonable slab had hired a cheap stoneman who started too far over on the slab and had to leave off the "e", so the family, rather than pay for another slab used it without the "e".

Shall St. Cloud put on her main street "My God, she is thin" or "My God, she is thine?"

DAUGHTERS OF UNION VETERANS

Mather Rickerdike Tent No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans, met in the G. A. R. Hall, Tuesday, June 7, at 2:30 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the President Mrs. Emma P. Raymond. In spite of the heat, there was a good attendance and a most interesting meeting was enjoyed.

Mrs. Antoinette Rode was installed as guide by Department President Mrs. Nettie Severn. Thirty-eight sick calls were reported. Several letters and postal cards from members, who are away for the summer were read. A communication was also read from Tent No. 1 of Miami telling of the Memorial day exercises. An unusual feature being that nine confederate soldiers joined with them. Many interesting experiences were exchanged between them and the union veterans. All expressed pleasure in being there and said it was a day that would long be remembered by them.

The floral committee reported that after the Memorial day services on Sunday, which the Tent attended in a body, all who could met at the home of Mrs. Jim Rowland and made wreaths and boquets which were taken early Monday morning, May 30, and placed on the graves of our heroes, who rest in Mt. Peace cemetery. 150 wreaths and 225 boquets were thus used. During the services to our unknown dead, the president of the Daughters placed a beautiful large wreath on the monument in the name of the Tent. At the service in memory of our sailor dead held at the lake, Mrs. M. Puckett-Foster rendered a beautiful tribute to the memory of our boys. Wreaths and boquets were cast on the waters in memory of those who sleep beneath the waves, making a solemn and impressive sight.

At 1:15 p. m. the Daughters assembled to take their place in the line of march to the park, where a well prepared program was rendered to a very appreciative assembly. The names of those taking part in the program appeared in the Tribune.

We as Daughters of Union Veterans highly appreciate all effort made on that date to honor the boys of the 60's who are with us, and the memory of those who are gone. We desire at this time to thank our president and her committee, who arranged the music for the day, also our floral committee and all who helped in any way to make this truly a Memorial day.

Press Correspondent.

R. S. LACKEY WRITES ABOUT BIG CATCHES

Devotees of the piscatorial sport, who frequent northeast Nebraska streams and lakes, will be interested in the story told by R. S. Lackey St. Cloud, Fla., formerly of Norfolk, which goes like this:

"There are some fish here that would like to be caught. I went out with some fellows the other day and we caught 120 yellow perch, black bass and a dozen dogfish. That was my first lucky day for fish as I caught the first one, the biggest one and the most fish, landing a total of sixty-two.

"A few days later Bobby (Mr. Lackey's son), caught his first black bass. Three neighbors went out one afternoon and caught sixty-three bass. I saw one bass that another man hooked and it weighed 12 pounds. It was the largest bass that I ever saw.

"One day a bunch of us drove fifty miles to the St. John's river. The river forms a lake in which we waded. One string of thirty-five bass, another about the same size, three smaller strings, besides nearly 150 fish of various varieties left the lake the day we fished.

"This is a great country for fish stories and most of them can be proven. One old friend W. H. Parriott and Dr. R. C. Simmons could have a real time on these lakes.

"Some of you Norfolk fishermen better come to St. Cloud next winter and have the time of your lives."

Mr. Lackey writes that only about five inches of rain has fallen in the St. Cloud vicinity since the first of the year. This is the opposite of conditions a years ago, he says.—Norfolk Daily News, Norfolk, Nebraska.

"Chicken Necks"

Under this heading, Herbert Folkel of the St. Augustine Record had a Mother's day editorial in which the sacrifices made by our mothers were touchingly summed up. One paragraph is quoted, as follows:

"We remember, too, how we could not understand why Mother preferred the neck of the chicken to any other part, because we did not like the neck, and none of the Rest of the children seemed to care for the neck. But that was what Mother always took for herself. We know now. The only way she could make the chicken go around and not have any one of us feel mean and selfish, was for her to take the neck. But we didn't wake up until after she had gone to Heaven."

One record Chamberlin and Levine seemingly have overlooked is that of "long distance diving record." New York to a German swamp.

CAPT. TYLER MARRIES AT RIPE AGE OF NINETY-NINE

Married at the age of 99 years is extraordinary under any circumstances. To marry with the band playing, flags waving, a great crowd applauding, the chaplain to perform the ceremony, your commanding officer to give the bride away, and a senator of Illinois speaking in praise of your valor—no wonder that the winter of life seems summer time to Capt. W. A. Tyler.

Captain Tyler, oldest veteran in the Soldier's home married Mrs. Martha Jellison, under the big flag at the headquarters building of the home, on Memorial Day afternoon. They stood amid flowers that filled the stone steps behind them, as D. V. Gowdy, chaplain of th Soldiers' home, performed the ceremony, while a mass of spectators that would crowd a half city block, expectantly watched.

Kissing the bride as he led her up the flower strewn steps into the main corridor of the headquarters building, Captain Tyler's gaiety won all hearts and for the next half hour he and his bride were occupied in receiving the congratulations of the crowd that filed through the corridor. They then left for a drive and the wedding dinner, served at the home of the bride's son, Charles Christ, 1100 North Fifth street.

Fit setting for an act in a movie scenario, the wedding was under the direction of Col. O. C. Smith, managing officer of the home. He waved his hand to the W. C. U. band, stationed outside headquarters, at 3:30 o'clock.

The chaplain walked down the steps and took his place, back to the big crowd that wedged the wedding party in a narrow space on the sidewalk. As though borne on the strains of music, Captain Tyler and Mrs. Jellison came tripping down the flower carpeted stairway, frail and gallant figures, but smiling joyously. He wore a suit—gray was the uniform of the Confederates he had fought. A necktie of red, white and blue, told of his reverence for his flag and a red poppy in his coat lapel bespoke a memory of the veterans of '97. The bride's dress was gray silk, with a jaunty tan straw hat and blue scarf.

Little Margaret Ellen Smith dropped blossoms in their path and Colonel Smith stood near to give the bride away. Miss Elsie Goeke was bridesmaid.

After the ceremony Senator Earl R. Searcy did his bit. "Captain Tyler," he said, "scions of that generation of fighters whose gallant deeds made it possible for us to keep secure the home and the hoblings that we now enjoy. If anyone deserves a happy marriage it is the gallant old warrior, who did his full part in making possible the development of this great land of ours.

"I give him greetings and the best wishes from the Spanish-American war veterans, the soldiers of the great war, from his old comrades here and from the loyal people of Illinois."

The band started the first bars of "In the Good Old Summer Time," and the crowd broke ranks to rush the bride and bridegroom with praise and congratulations.

The wedding dinner, served in the Charles Christ home, was attended by near relatives of the bride. A flower decorated table with soft candle light was surrounded by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crist, their daughters, Erma Lee, Lola Mae, and Thelma Jane, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Christ and daughter Ila June, Mrs. Chessie Shannon and daughter Bryl Eugene, of Hannibal, Mo. and Mrs. Press Bowles, Willis Woods and family, Cecil Woods and Miss Hallie Johnson.

The news of the wedding of Captain Tyler will be of interest to his many friends in St. Cloud, where he has been spending his winters for some years.

Only a few weeks ago he left for his home in Quincy, Ill., with the understanding that he would soon return and make his future home here. St. Cloud will be pleased to welcome the Captain and his new bride.

MISS MARY OWEN DELIGHTS CROWD AT WCTU BENEFIT

An appreciative audience on Monday evening, May 23, was entertained by Miss Mary Owen of St. Cloud, who claims the title of school entertainer, but who delights those who have long left school as well as those of more tender years. The affair was conducted under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U. at the M. E. Church.

Opening the program with a song, bringing in static by use of radio, her voice was imitated with almost true likeness.

The program was further interspersed with solos by local talent, Mrs. J. A. Watkins sang "Roses of Picardy," with Mrs. Laurence Barlow at piano, while Mr. Rex Barlow rendered a musical number with Miss Thelma Barlow as accompanist.

Miss Owen gave three acts, each one tense with interest and originality. Her voice control was unusual as she imitated various sounds. Her story of meeting a gorilla in the wilds of South Africa, while on a hunting trip with her father and brother, held the audience spellbound until the great beast had her almost in his clutches; when she shrieked, the audience started and aroused themselves to find that it was all a dream. Her crowning feat at the climax to the program was the playing of "House, Sweet House," with her back to the piano and her arms crossed.

Miss Owen will always be accorded a warm welcome in Davenport. She won the hearts of her listeners at the entertainment and when the new school auditorium is completed there will be hundreds of others who can enjoy her excellent program.—Davenport Times, June 3.

WHERE COOLIDGE WILL SPEND SUMMER VACATION

Black Hills a Beauty Spot

Only the arrival of Captain Charles Lindbergh from Europe delays a possible earlier start of President Coolidge for his summer camp the South Dakota Game Lodge, situated high in the Black Hill. In a special cable to America's flying ace, the President asked Lindbergh to come direct to Washington on the cruiser Memphis, to arrive at the capital by June 11.

President Coolidge does not want to start for the West until he has officially welcomed home our "Ambassador of the Air" who made history in his Atlantic hop, New York to Paris. Also the government wants to confer all suitable honors and show appreciation in a fitting manner.

Summer White House in Blac' Hills

Within the week after Lindbergh's arrival, the President and his office staff, with a great group of special press correspondents will be off for the West and for the next ten to twelve weeks the nation at large will learn many interesting facts not generally known about the beauties and natural resources of the Dakota Black Hills.

The decision by the President to make the South Dakota Game Lodge the official summer White House during 1927 will advertise a very much neglected resource. Residence by the head of a nation is usually the making of a resort. Before George IV went to Brigton it was known only a fishing hamlet under the name of Brighthelmstone., For a hundred years since it has been England's Atlantic City.

No doubt many sincere but not fully informed American students of geography will lose some wagers this summer if history repeats itself. Natives of North Carolina once paid handsomely for misdirected faith in their knowledge of facts.

The Highest Peak East of Rockies

Mt. Washington in the White mountains of New Hampshire stands 6,711 feet above sea level. In North Carolina stands Mt. Mitchell—which towers some 423 feet above Mt. Washington. It was the honest belief of native sons that Mt. Mitchell was the highest peak East of the Rockies.

Therefore, when strangers appeared in North Carolina some years ago, disputing that Mt. Mitchell was the highest peak East of the Rockies—and willing to back up their claim with cold cash,—Carolinans dug deep and many thousands of dollars were wagered.

Then the strangers produced U. S. Geological Survey records, showing Harney Peak, Black Hills, as 7,242 feet high—just 108 feet higher than Mt. Mitchell.

TOO MANY HOLIDAYS

The District of Columbia has set an example by refusing to let public schools observe any more special days or special weeks. It found that setting aside this day and that week for some particular purpose was interfering with the regular school work. Hereafter only the long honored and cherished holidays will be observed in the capital's schools.

And now the United States Chamber of Commerce comes along to stamp the special day and week idea a nuisance to business. It seems that business, too, could dispense with the holiday fad.

Though the calendar says there are only 52 weeks in the year, records show at least 100 special weeks designated for one purpose or another. They range from "achievement week" to "Y. M. C. A. week." There are weeks devoted to animal kindness, apples, butter, better homes, corn, cranberries, courtesy, daughters, books, canned goods, constitution study, fathers, fire prevention, forest conservation, gardens, honors, mothers, oranges, prepare-hills promptly, prunes, reindeers, speech, temperance, thrift and what not.

Other virtues are clamoring for seven-day recognition. Proposals include "pride-in-appearance week," "honesty week," "efficiency week," "self-denial week," "good roads week," "poetry week," "civic week," "good health week," etc. Milk and a host of other foodstuffs are also hungry for free publicity.

In addition to special weeks our calendar is glutted up with special days to supplement the regular holidays. There are no national holidays, technically speaking, but we have 12 days in a year that are practically that. In addition, different states observe about 50 other legal or public holidays. This, of course, is in addition to religious holidays. To the lengthy list of holidays have recently been added "Armistice day," "Navy day," "National Fathers' day," and other special days of more or less significance.

Some of the special observances are undoubtedly worthy, but many are selfish and are fostered by professional boosters. All are accomplished through propaganda, whether by the raisin-growers, the clothing industry or publishers who want to drum up trade. And some weeks are positively silly. Prohibition, for instance, is a law and should be equally well observed the whole year round. Likewise one should be kind to animals 365 days and not only in seven.

Of course, people are at liberty to honor any person, product or object they want to, whether as organizations or individuals, but why drag the nation into it?—The Pathfinder.

FLORIDA IS CIVILIZED

HAS MANY THINGS IN COMMON WITH OTHER STATES VISITORS NEED NOT FEAR WILD ANIMALS

By ERVIN S. HALL

People coming from other states often have vague and mistaken ideas of conditions they will find here. Much printed matter including many postcards showing grapefruit as big as pumpkins and alligators swallowing pickaninnies has been distributed and a wrong impression created. Our visiting friends should remember that Florida is a part of the same good old world that they have been used to and a most alluring and altogether lovely part too.

It is said that a lady tourist was anxious to know what protection she would have against alligators while here. She was gently told not to feel "jumpy" about it; that the imitation alligator hand bag that she carried was about the nearest she would come to seeing one. It was impressed upon her that in order to meet a real wild 'gator she would have to go to some remote swamp and hunt industriously for him; and even then he would let her alone unless she sassed him good and plenty, or prodded him with her umbrella until he got his prehistoric dander up and then he might bite; and who wouldn't? No; 'gators are no longer dangerous in our state; the alligator pear being now about the fiercest of the all.

There are some mistaken notions about farming here. It is true that conditions are somewhat different, but not to a degree to cause confusion. With us peanuts do not grow on trees and mangoes are a glorious fruit, and not a pepper. Carrots grow with the tapering end down as they do in Wisconsin, and they have the same old Oshkosh taste. It is sometimes hard to make a farmer from the north understand that with our mild climate it is not necessary to "hole in" potatoes and cabbage in the winter to keep them from freezing. He has the habit and it is hard to break.

In the matter of weather Florida has the rest of the world frazzled. That may be safely asserted, and yet that is often misunderstood. Sometimes we have chilly days with a slight touch of frost in the mornings, just enough to tone things up a bit, and some transient visitor gets impatient and inquiries: "What in blazes do you have this kind of weather for? I can get all of this I want up in Ohio, and I came here to get shut of it!" The dear old chap forgets that while he is finding fault because the sun doesn't happen to shine for half a day, the people where he came from are wearing ear-muffs and walking around with icicles hanging to their noses. The reasonable man who loves his wife and tries to live up to the Constitution of the United States will soon see the beauties of our climate and love Florida.

Some people say that sundays seem to come closer together here than in the state farther north. This is only an apparent difference. They are really the same distance apart, but folks enjoy life to the full here, and are so delirously happy that the time seems to pass faster. A sixty day note appears to come due quicker too.

Obeying the well known laws of gravitation water has a strong tendency to run down hill here the same as in Vermont; but the hills aren't so high and it never gets hard enough to skate on. Water is used for quite a large number of purposes, such as laundry, swimming, boating, bathing, irrigation and sometimes for drinking. During our rainy season the large amount of moisture in the atmosphere causes our renowned sunsets, the most beautiful in the world.

On the whole water may be justly regarded as an asset to our noble state and its presence is endorsed by all chambers of commerce.

Our visiting friends should observe that we have an excellent moon. Floridians are proud of it. For a scene of exquisite beauty take a moonlight ride among the Florida keys and watch the dolphins sporting in the quiet waters of the bayous, hear the singing of the breeze among the long-leaved pines and see the campfires burning under the live oaks, and it will linger in memory for many years. Such an experience will bring out all the latent sentiment in a person's system.

Let it be remembered that there is a difference between moonlight and moonshine in Florida. The former is one of the most delightful things in the world and will mellow our natures until a sentimental youth will propose to an Indian squaw; the latter is a potent distillation that will make a mild-eyed rabbit spit in the face of a panther!

VETERANS' ASSOCIATION

On June 11, 1927, the Veterans' Association met at the G. A. R. Hall and was called to order by the president, Comrade A. W. Lathrop, and was opened by singing "America" and prayer offered by Comrade N. W. Beauchamp. After the minutes were read and approved all joined in singing the Florida song and gave the St. Cloud yell.

The motion came before the house to discontinue the Veterans' Association meetings until the first Saturday in November. The motion was lost, so the meetings will be continued each Saturday as usual.

The president urged that every one get ready for Flag Day, the 14th of June. Mrs. Norris announced that the W. C. T. U. would have a picnic the 17th of this month, at the city park, and extended a cordial invitation to everyone to attend.

President Lathrop urged that every one be at the mass meeting to be held at the chamber of commerce Monday, June 13, to nominate candidates for school trustees.

The social hour was in the charge of the W. R. C. with Mrs. Claussen as chairman, and the following interesting and enjoyable program was given:

Address, "The Flag" by Mrs. Clara Kenney.

Song with banjo, "Mother's Prayer and "Will There Be Any Stars In My Crown," by Halton Tillis.

Reading, "Over the Hill to the Poor House," and "Mary Had a Little Lamb," Mrs. Williams.

Song, Marion Barth, accompanied by Charlotte Barth.

Duet, "The Man of G. Hee" Rev. and Mrs. R. Atchison, accompanied by Miss Browning on the piano.

Encore, "All For Jesus."

Reading, "I Can't Find A Thing When the Wife is Away," Charlotte Barth.

Reading "Dave Lillie," Comrade Blackman.

Piano solo, Charlotte Barth.

Reading, "Just a Friend and He'll You Give Him a Lift" Mrs. Claussen.

Song, "The Old Rugged Cross," Halton Tillis.

The program closed with the flag salute and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

The social hour next week will be in charge of the W. C. T. U.

Liberals Rebel

Unsatisfied with the peace terms arranged at the conference between their leader Gen. Jose Moncada and Mr. H. L. Stimson certain Liberals resisted the taking of their arms by United States Marines and in the clash that followed it is reported that two American Marines and a number of Nicaraguans were killed. Dr. Juan Sacasa, leader of the Liberal Party, asserted that the continuance in office of Diaz was forced upon the Nicaraguans and expressed the fear that the disarming of Liberal troops would result in bloodshed, which would "only be caused by the attitude of the American government." Members of Sacasa's party have refused to enter the Cabinet of President Diaz, but have agreed to cooperate in the by-Congressional elections this year.

The Relapses

"Ten years! And the doctor hasn't cured him yet?"

"Oh, yes, he has been cure' several times. But every time he gets the doctor's bill he gets another breakdown and the doctor has to take him in hand again."

WAITED UNTIL 70 TO START HER CAREER; INFOUR SHORT YEARS HAS CARVED SUCCESS

By SIDNEY RICH

"She's president of the company and general manager of the factory," they told me in New Haven, Conn., her home town, "and she was nearly 70 before she even thought of doing such a thing. She came back from a trip around the world to find the business her husband had built up just about factory, I simply set about keeping house."

"Keeping house." That didn't sound much like managing a factory of 400 employees.

"Certainly. Running a factory is like keeping house. When there are hard times the housewife begins to cut down expenses. When times are

SAYS MRS. GREIST—

Mrs. Greist has other rules besides those of good housekeeping which she applies to the business of running a factory. Here are a few of them:

Know your business and attend to it.

Be sure to see all your employees every day. They like to know you are interested.

The only way to do a day's work is to start early in the morning.

Handle your men with a smile.

Don't bother with details.

To manage your business to the best advantage go as far away from it as you can now and then. Forget all about it until you come back.

Success at 74

Mrs. J. M. Greist, of New Haven, Conn., who at 74 is active President and General Manager of the Griest Manufacturing Co., employing 400 workmen. "Know your business and attend to it" is her formula.

done for in the after-the-war slump. She jumped into things and worked night and day to get that factory back on its feet. It's there now and growing."

"That sounds like a man-sized job," I said.

"It is that, and she didn't have to do it, for she has plenty of her own. But a good many of us that had stock in the company would have lost it if she hadn't come to the rescue."

A few hours later, Mrs. J. M. Greist, president and general manager of the Greist Manufacturing Company, which makes lamps and sewing machine parts and does machine shop contract work for other firms, was crossing her sun room towards me. Her hair was as white as snow in moonlight, but you would not give her age as 74 by ten years.

Just "Keeping House"

"There is nothing remarkable about it," she announced at once. "When I came back from New Haven after eight months' absence I learned that conditions were very poor at the good extravagances creep in if she doesn't watch. That's the way with a factory. We all became careless during the war when business was abnormal. Two people were apt to be doing the work one could do as well. We were wasteful of material, of time and a dozen things that count up. So the obvious step to take was the one I would take in my home.

Of course, it isn't that I didn't know something about business. I was a business girl in the days when the only callings thought respectable for women were school teaching and marriage. And then I was always interested in my husband's work when he was living. He brought home his plans and problems to talk over and each month we went over the financial statement together. I lost all interest when he died but the fundamental principles of business stayed with me. business.

A fundamental principle applies to any business, I don't care if it is only that of pushing an apple-cart."

On the Job Early and Late

Beginning at a time when most people have found an easy chair in a chimney corner and are reminiscing about their careers, she weathered terrible years when business was an ordeal for those long-accustomed. She bought a home near the factory and was there at eight o'clock in the morning and didn't leave until after the whistle blew at night. Little by little the wheels of better times began to turn. Now the volume of business is greater than it ever has been.

Her recipe for keeping young is activity. "My mother was over 95 years when she died," she says, "and I never knew her to be idle. I plan to keep busy—I can't bear to think of just looking at a hole in the wall some day."

Horse back riding and walking are still among her activities. She has little use for automobiling. "I have to use them," she says as she steps into her car, "but I don't understand the things and I don't like them. Bring a horse around to the door, though, and I know what to do with him."

THE PREACHER'S LAMENT

Perceiving the difficulty of pleasing all the members of his flock, and reflecting upon the criticisms which he had long endured, the Rev. Basil Matthews, vicar of Holy Trinity Church, London, voiced his lamentations recently in a rather humorous vein, in part as follows:

"Be he (the minister) grave in his demeanor, seeking to uphold the dignity of his cloth, he is said to be standoffish and uppish; yea, the ungodly call him 'Holy Joe.'

"So then he trieth to be gay, but this too, displeaseth some.

"With young men and maidens, if from them he hold aloof, they mislike him much. So that when they should turn to him as a friend, with them he cutteth no ice.

"If he exhorteth all men to abstain from strong drink, he is said to be a killjoy, and inhuman. But if he entereth a tavern and putteth his foot upon the rail of brass, there be those who say, 'Behold a winebibber.' So when he bloweth froth he committeth iniquity, and when he bloweth it not he is likewise a sinner.

"Let the servant therefore walk in the steps of his Master, and care nought for the opinion of man."

"IS THE TOWN DEAD?"

A letter received recently from one of the winter visitors to St. Cloud, who is also a property owner, says in part, that the "Town is dead" and the sooner that we wake up to it the better off we will be.

There is no doubt in the world that if this represents the feeling of all the people in the town that it must be so, and as long as this kind of doctrine is preached, just so long will the city be "dead."

We are thankful that this is the viewpoint of only a very few people, for if this man could be here, and would put the energy he is devoting to this doctrine, into efforts just the reverse, he would realize that the town is not "dead", and these efforts used for the benefit of all, would materially help us all.

He also spoke of " high taxes", and it is evident that although a tax payer, he does not think of what he is saying. The taxes in the city are about the lowest that they have ever been, and the chances are very good that they will remain at about the same level for some time to come. The high taxes to which he should refer are the county taxes, and they cannot be helped now.

THE CITY MANAGER RETAINED

It is a pleasure to note that at the regular monthly meeting of the City Commission held last Monday evening, that the Commission went on record as entering into a contract with City Manager George M. Mitchell to continue his services in his present capacity for another year.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Tribune will be found the semi-annual report of the city manager for the past six months, and should be read by every tax-payer, in order that he may be familiar with the work that has been completed, is now under way, and something of the plans for the future.

Since Mr. Mitchell's contract expired a few months ago, he has been retained only from month to month as city manager, and laboring under that handicap has been unable to plan his work very far ahead. However, with the action of the commission last Monday in renewing the contract for another year, it will enable Mr. Mitchell to plan his work more definitely, and to carry out the ideas of the commission more fully.

Co-operation between the commissioners themselves, and between the commission and the city manager, is necessary for a successful city administration, and we are pleased to see that this condition exists in St. Cloud at the present time. It means that our plan for civic improvements will continue to advance, and with the backing of the individual citizens the city's future prosperity is assured.

OUR SCHOOL TRUSTEE

An election will be held soon in the St. Cloud school district for the selection of a board of school trustees, and to fix the millage for the coming year.

It seems that there is a movement on foot, via the petition method, to place opposition on the ticket in competition to the present trustees, Messrs. J. L. Marsh, J. F. Daniels and J. W. Sage. We can see no necessity for the proposed change, as these men have faithfully served the school district for the past year. They are familiar with the construction work now under way, and the plans for the future of the schools, and in our humble opinion it would be very unwise to make any change at this time.

It is generally understood that this movement for a change was started by a few dissatisfied citizens, who can be numbered on the fingers of one hand, who are "at outs" with the principal of the school, and hope to put certain parties in office as trustees and in this way put "the skids" under the said principal.

We wonder when some of the citizens of St. Cloud will rise above "self" and not be unduly influenced by "personalities." It is to be hoped that the majority of those who are qualified electors will go to the polls remembering the splendid record made the past year by the school trustees, and the past five years by the principal, and vote for retaining the present school officials.

There has been only one "perfect" man in the world. The rest of us have our faults. A man should be judged by the results of his labors. Anyone who will investigate thoroughly the record of Principal H. F. Zetrouer the past five years, cannot help but see that the St. Cloud schools have advanced almost spectacularly under his supervision. Mr. Zetrouer is a young man, has modern ideas, keeps in touch with school matters—local, state and national, and, above all else, he has the co-operation of his faculty. If the teachers make mistakes they are frankly told of them. On the other hand, if they make a just decision, he backs them up. And this is as it should be.

SALE OF LIGHT PLANT IS RUMOR

It has come to the attention of the Tribune that some citizens of this community noticed an article in a recent issue of The Orlando Morning Sentinel, which stated that Governor Martin had approved a bill providing for the sale of the municipal water and power plant, and have been wondering what it is all about.

This morning we got in touch with Mayor C. P. Parker regarding the matter, and he stated that this was merely looking to some future date in case the city should receive a proposal for the purchase of the city plant. The act gives permission for the sale but carries a referendum clause providing that the sale must be approved by the voters who are property owners in the city.

So there is nothing to be alarmed about, for the city commission was merely taking the necessary steps to give the property owners an opportunity to express themselves, should the occasion ever arise.

OUR STORM SEWERS

Many have been the complaints, kicks, and criticisms, that have been heaped upon the City Commission, for including the installation of storm sewers in the street paving programs which have recently been completed and are now under construction.

They said that it was a waste of money and that they wouldn't work, but—have you noticed the results after the recent hard rains we have been having? Take notice next time., and you will see the surplus water disappear like magic in less than thirty minutes, while heretofore the water has stood for probably a day or longer.

Of course, there are precautions that must be taken to keep these sewer lines open. For instance if you trim your lawn along the curb and leave the grass in the gutter it will be washed into the sewer and stop it up. This is the only trouble that has been discovered so far, and otherwise the results are highly pleasing.

Those present to enjoy the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dawley, Mr. and Mrs. Lilburn Godwin, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Bruns, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Story, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Chunn, and Miss Madelyn Rode.

CHICKEN DINNER

Mrs. Jennie Ward was hostess to friends at a good old fashioned chicken dinner at her home last Thursday. She was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Maude Church of Tampa. The time was spent in pleasant conversation and games. Just before the guests left a fine watermelon was served. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Kilde and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Holden.

MRS. CHAS. BARTH HOSTESS

Mrs. Chas. Barth will be hostess to the Christian Endeavor of the Christian church at her home on South Kentucky avenue, Friday evening. A surprise is in store for all who attend.

GRAND ARMY VETERAN DIES AT FLORIDA HOME

G. H. Tilton Writes Interesting Account of Life of Solomon N. Leavitt —Both Members of N. H. Co.

Laconia Democrat, Laconia, N. H.

Relatives here in Laconia advise me that they have received word of the death in St. Cloud, Florida, March 8 of Solomon Nehemiah Leavitt, formerly of Meredith, and as I am the last survivor in New Hampshire of the Company to which he belonged, during the Civil War, I would like to tell you and the Meredith people what I know about him, as his record is altogether too good to be forgotten.

His grandfather was Nehemiah Leavitt, of Meredith; his father was Nehemiah Leavitt, Jr., and his mother, before marriage was Ruth French of Northfield. I understand his grandfather cleared the farm in Meredith now owned by Mr. Veazey, and served seven years in the Continental Army during the Revolution. Solomon was born on this farm June 20, 1839. When the Civil War broke out he came down to Laconia and enlisted for three years in the Company being raised by Captain William Badger and which was to be attached to the 4th Regiment of New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, to be commanded by Col. Thomas J. Whipple of Laconia. I think he enlisted early in August 1861 and served continuously until the last of August 1865—over four year. He was a brave soldier from first to last, was in all the battles of his Regiment. On the 29th day of September, 1864 during the attack on Fort Gilmer near Richmond, he was badly wounded. Of the thirteen men in his Company that day only two escaped unhurt; he recovered sufficiently to be with his regiment at the storming of Fort Fisher near Wilmington, N. C. January 15, 1865, in this battle he escaped unhurt, but with many others was injured very badly by the explosion of the magazine a few hours later. He was able to move with the Regiment when the 10th Army Corps marched into North Carolina; but while on a scout was captured by the Confederate Cavalry, and held a prisoner until the close of the War. After he was mustered out he came back home for a while, then moved to the West where for many years he was in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company in North West Canada. There was very little of that country that he was not acquainted with, and later on he drifted down to our side of the line, Montana, and was with the Indians for sometime. When Major Crook commanded our troops during the Indian War Leavitt was employed as a scout knowing the country so well. At the close of hostilities he became interested in ranching and there was very little of the country that he was not well acquainted with between the Canadian line and the Mexican; during all these years his life was one of hardship and danger. In his old age he became much troubled with asthma and was advised by the doctors to try a warmer climate, and he with quite a number of Grand Army men located in St. Cloud, Florida, where he was made his home for some years. A short time ago I received a letter from him in which he was pleased to tell me that during the winter he had made quite a few changes in his house, and having done most of the work himself, thought it was doing pretty well for a man of his age. Later I understand he was injured which resulted in blood poisoning from which he died. He never married. He is survived by a niece, Mrs. Nancy Leavitt-Rendexter and grand-niece, Mrs. Bertha P. Wiggin, of Laconia, N. H.

I wish it were possible to print in detail a story of his life as I know it, it would be intensely interesting, a life full of danger and hardship. I don't think any hero of the moving pictures could approach him in what he passed through during his long years of service with the Hudson Bay Company, with our armies in the West, or as a rancher, but it is impossible. I will say, however, that I think he kept the record of the Leavitt family good, for the old grandfather with his seven years in the Revolution and Solomon with over four years' service in the Civil War, certainly kept up the standard of the men of Meredith in the different wars, and Solomon Nehemiah Leavitt should not be forgotten now that he has been finally mustered out.

G. H. TILTON.

DODGE SIX, THE SENIOR CREATES MUCH SURPRISE

The arrival of Dodge Brothers keenly anticipated Six has swung the spot light of interest in the direction of the salesrooms where, tradition tells us, the word "dependable" was given popular coinage. There it remains focused, for the new Six, the Senior, reveals much that absorbs the attention and much also that creates surprise.

New cars and new models are constantly rolling over the horizon, but a Six arriving from the Dodge laboratories carries its own peculiar news value. There are, of course, certain pre-conceived ideas as to high quality in structure and mechanics, due to the past history of the makers covering a period of twelve successful years during which nearly two million cars were built and marketed. But how does this new member of the family perform? And—here is where curiosity is perhaps uppermost—how does it look? Is there a note of conservatism in its appearance? Or does it look as though its designers were appealing to flaming youth?

It may be said at once that without being extreme in any sense Dodge Brothers Six has plenty of snap in its appearance as well as in its performance. Niran Bates Pope, one of the foremost technical editors in the country, hits it off well when he says in Automobile Topics: "Dodge Brothers Senior is a distinctive embodiment of the spirit of the times." Mr. Pope, who made an intensive study of the new product and wrote exhaustively on the subject, continues:

"Its size is rendered indefinite by the gently rounded contours of the roof line which is crowned and moulded over the sides to produce the effect of length and lowness without unpleasant accentuation anywhere. Actually it stands a fraction over 71 inches from the ground, but looks considerably lower.

"An entirely new interpretation of the moulding line is created by the use of recessed panels on the doors and swinging around the back from one rear quarter to that on the other side. The entire front of the car is distinctly new. The radiator is deep, rather high and surrounded by barely more than a rim of the polished shell which is of uniform width, save at the top, where it widens out. The butterfly sweep of the guards is effective; the lines of the hood rugged and strong.

"There is abundant room inside the car for comfortable riding and frequent change of posture during a long drill in uncomfortable weather. All the interior work is carefully tuned on the chromatic scale to a soft and durable exterior of blues and greens in lacquer finish, set off appropriately with ivory hair lines."

Mr. Pope goes over the car minutely from a mechanical standpoint and makes this interesting summary of the power plant:

"The motor follows modern practice in numerous ways, utilizing also the many years experience of Dodge Brothers engineering department in producing a power plant that will run on and on with a minimum of attention for years. It would be in the eyes of some designers a little bigger in volume than the weigh of the car demands, but this means abundant power under all circumstances. Though the major emphasis is not placed on speed it will probably yield a great deal longer life and produce a great deal less trouble for the consumer than any of the high speed motors."

But in the last analysis actual performance is a vastly important factor. The impressions of a seasoned observer like Mr. Pope are important: "That the Senior will sell very largely on sight and on the strength of Dodge Brothers reputation is a foregone conclusion," he says, "for it is a clean-cut thoroughly modern car. But more than all that it will sell on demonstration. It is a remarkably smooth performer under normal road conditions. It has been proved on cross continental tests to have remarkable endurance under the sort of punishment only cross continental drivers know how to inflict. It handles as any car should. The clutch pedal and the engagement are smooth; the gears change easily and the standard shift will be a comfort to many drivers.

"As for speed, the car on smooth pavements picks up uniformly to its 50, its 60 or more and no one doubts the speedometer. In second it flashes to the smartest kind of get-away—25, 30, 35 or even 40—without perceptible vibration, without any of those groans and rumbling that make so many drivers afraid of second speed."

Mr. Pope summarizes his impressions thus: "It is a car of armchair comfort, velvety control and a willingness to perform—about which there can be no argument whatever."

GRAHAM BROTHERS TRUCK SHIPMENTS IN MAY AGAIN BREAK WORLD'S RECORD

Shipment of Graham Brothers trucks and commercial cars during May to Dodge Brothers dealers who sell and service them throughout the world broke all previous records for the year. The May total of 5,718 units was a substantial increase over the April record, continuing the ascending curve which shows the constantly growing popularity of these trucks.

The great growth in demand for Graham Brothers trucks and commercial cars has been met by largely increased production. Considerin- just the last week in May, the company's plants in Detroit, Evansville, Ind., and Stockton, Calif., produced 1600 vehicles—an average of 307 a day for the five and one-half working days. On one day, May 26, 431 trucks were produced.

The remarkable record set in May will not stand long, dealers and company officials believe. The new engine—announced June 5—now built into all Graham Brothers trucks and commercial cars, gives them added prestige among truck and delivery equipment users who require the utmost dependability, economy, and speed in commercial transportation units with load capacities of ¾, 1, 1½ and 2-tons. Greater power, faster acceleration and smoother operation—all obtained with actual decrease in gasoline consumption—are claimed for this remarkable four cylindre engine.

SUN ECLIPSE IS SCHEDULED FOR JUNE

WASHINGTON]—June, ordinarily a month of weddings but few other elaborate entertainments, has been appropriated by the great feminine impresario, Dame Nature, for a demonstration of her virtuosity.

Her repertoire, as made public the American Nature Association, includes, for that month, the following spectacles:

June 15—Total eclipse of the moon, through the American Nature Association, includes, for that month, the following spectacles:

June 22—The sun will reach its greatest distance north of the equator, thus inaugurating summer with the northern hemisphere.

June 26—The small Pons-Winnecke comet will approach within 3,500,000 miles of the earth, which is closer than most comets ever come.

June 29—Total eclipse of the sun, visible in England, Scandinavia, and partially, in other sections of Europe, northern Africa and Alaska.

The grand climax of the program will give England its first view of a total eclipse of the sun since 1724, and the performance will not be repeated there until 1999. Even so, the audience will have to be in its places early, for the show will begin about 5:25 a. m., and will last less than a minute.

The professional reviewers, who are called astronomers, plan to take up their position in Norway and Sweden, where they can sleep a few minutes longer before the curtain rises—or, more accurately, descends—and get a better view, because the sun will be a little higher over the horizon when it is eclipsed.

Alaska will glimpse the spectacle as it ends, at sunset, over the Pacific, after passing over the Arctic across the Bering sea to the Aleutian Islands. At Nome the magnitude of the eclipse will be only 80 per cent, that is, 14 per cent. of the sun will be visible around the edges of the moon. At Liverpool the moon will completely blot out the sun for a few seconds, while at London four per cent of the great globe will be visible at the moment of maximum eclipse.

The McCormick-Chaloner expedition of the Leander McCormick observatory of the University of Virginia, in charge of Prof. S. A. Mitchell, director of the observatory, will observe the eclipse at Fagernes, Norway, where it will be visible for 34 seconds. J. A. Chaloner, of Virginia, is financing the expedition, which hopes to bring back valuable records.

Citizenship

There is no hard and fast rules determining the question of citizenship in Florida. It is largely a matter of intention. To become a qualified elector the person must be 21, an American citizen and reside permanently in the state for one year and in the county for six months. The poll tax of $1.00 a year. Voters must register.

CITY COMMISSION

Regular monthly meeting of the city commission is held the second Monday in each month, at 7:30 p. m. Also special meetings are held the 1st and 16th of each month.

HOLOPAW

Our school closed last week after a very successful term. On Wednesday night the graduating exercises were given. Our Mr. A. M. Foote gave the address. Mr. Foote's talk was good for every one as well as the class.

On Thursday night we again gathered to see the play "The Graduate's Dream," put on by the high school pupils. This event closed our exercises.

Britton Spann is attending summer school at Montverde.

Mrs. Robt. Cook and children and Miss Adella Meadows left last week for a month's visit in Mississippi.

We are very glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Gray and family in our city. Mr. Gray is manager of the store here.

Miss Evelyn Jackson is visiting in Bartow.

Mr. E. V. Rice is quite ill at his home here.

Miss Lettie Ward, Mrs. J. H. Hawthorne and Clarence Jones spent Tuesday in Orlando. Mrs. Hawthorne went over to Dr. Christ.

Mr. M. A. Cook entertained his Sunday school class on Tuesday night at his home. Mr. Cook does this once a month to the delight of the young people.

Saw Mill Cracker

A BELATED APPRECIATION TO MR. J. P. BLOOD

The Red Cross Chpater wishes to give our fellow townsman, Mr. J. P. Blood credit for his splendid contribution of ten dollars for the relief of flood sufferers in the Mississippi Valley. When the funds were being raised Mr. Blood got no credit for this handsome donation because the same had never come into the hands of the committee.

By a mistake in the post office the envelope containing the check and addressed to the President Red Cross, city, was placed in the wrong mail box and went to an altogether different party who has this week sent it the proper authorities. This money has now been forwarded as an addition to the St. Cloud quota already sent, and we wish to thank you deeply for it, Mr. Blood.

FLORIDA AN INDUSTRIAL STATE

It is about time that we recognized the possibilities of Florida from a manufacturing standpoint. We know what it has to offer as a playground for tourist and as an agricultural state but few cities have gone into the matter of industries. With all the high power lines throughout the state supplying a twenty-four hour current for power and lights there is no limit to the industrial phase of Florida. More hours of daylight, more bright pleasant days of winter, less heating, cheaper fuel, plenty of land for industrials and plenty of land for the employees to have a little garden and a few chickens, good schools, good transportation, good climate the year round, a fine class of citizenship free from anarchy or radicalism or strikes. Bring these matters to the industries of the north and Florida will not be able to hold them. Florida is the place for many industries of various kinds.

SCHOOL NURSE REPORT

All schools have closed. St. Cloud, the last to close, completed the greatest year of its history in every respect, oratory, athletic, size and success of graduating classes, last but not least, the wonderful health record of the entire school. Not a single room closed on account of sickness or symptoms of any contagious disease. What is said of St. Cloud is equally true of eastern Osceola county schools. I visited Kenansville three days this month, attended their graduating exercises, made a talk on what had been done and what could be accomplished in health work for their children. In my work with these children, 64 have reports from the state board of health of positive cases of hookworm. Fifty of these have taken treatment, all show wonderful improvement in health and class work. As a whole this school is anxious to take advantage of all inoculation. I have requests for small pox vaccination from several of the parents, which we hoped to have the state give this summer.

Holopaw, a six teacher school has had a good year. I made two visits to them this month, at which time I made individual inspections, found 28 physically O. K., 22 who have defective teeth, 5 under weight, 3 who have defective eyes, 17 who have enlarged tonsils. Corrections made since last inspection, 8 have had teeth repaired, 10 have taken hook worm treatment and show great improvement in general condition.

Of seventy-four there are only 28, who have not had small pox vaccination. St. Cloud school has 169 pupils of first to eighth grade, who have never had small pox vaccination. Some of our boys who are going to Citizen Training Camp must now take vaccination before they can enter. Parents, why not give them this protection before they take chances all through school days? It certainly must be worth while, since our nation demands it before accepting the responsibility of any group of men.

England today is free from this dread disease because for years small pox vaccination has been compulsory. The time is not far distant when Florida will have the same law.

Home visits this month are as follows; three to prenatal cases, thirteen to infants, twenty-five to pre-school children, thirty one to school children, five to tuberculosis patients, six to mumps cases, and 14 to adults. Visits to schools 32, to class rooms 75, visits in behalf of nursing service 31. Interviews with or in behalf of cases 88. Personal health test of Boy Scout one, Home Hygiene classes conducted eleven. Visits in behalf of general activities 55. Issued immunization certificates, signed by Dr. Chunn, to fifteen boy scouts and boys going to C. T. C.

Distributed 101 booklets to parents of rural district, on health and how to retain it. Have traveled approximately 355 miles. Distributed second hand clothes to 31 needy persons. Of 248 pupils inspected, 106 have some defect that should be corrected. I was to find that 66, since a former inspection have had defects corrected. Individual consultations with parents in regard to children 34. Sanitary inspections of school grounds 7. Have given 55 class room talks on how to retain health. It is easier to retain than to regain health. Have given by orders of Dr. Chunn, hookworm treatment to 40 patients this month.

Oh! That Osceola county had more sanitary toilets! When she has, she has then taken a long stride toward elimination, for future generations, this dread plague we call hookworm.

BERTIE LEE HUNTER,
Red Cross School Nurse.

Clean, Smooth Streets
OF LASTING BEAUTY

WHAT impression does your town make on visitors—on you?

Consider your streets. Are they crumbling under motor traffic which must pick its way around ruts and holes? Or are they smoothly paved—clean and attractive—a good investment?

Portland cement concrete is the ideal pavement for this motor age—in towns and cities of all sizes. It is economical to build and maintain, permanently beautiful and—the safest pavement wet or dry.

"The Fifteen Millionth Ford"

Dr. Frank Crane Says

LET'S STOP THIS ENDLESS RACE

Representative Butler, chairman of the House and Naval Affairs Committee recently asserted that the United States ought to build practically a new navy to cost more than $400,000,000.

We are lagging steadily behind other nations and from being along toward the front we have dropped to fourth place.

This he holds to be a great danger.

Just where the competing nations in armament are to stop he does not suggest.

About the only way we can be made to stop is for one nation that is undoubtedly strong to cease competing with the others.

The danger in this course is that the others will take advantage of it. It will be looked upon as a trusting and lambllke sucker. A lamb among the wolves, and the danger is that the other nations may eat it up.

This is a favorite idea among a certain class of people, the idea that our own nation is trusting, gentle and kind and harmless and all the other nations are evil-minded and grasping.

There is no nation in the world in which this idea is not common.

The notion is not peculiar to nations. There are many individuals who have it. Many people in a family refuse to be kind and gentle because they think the other members of the family will take advantage of them.

It seems to be an absurd idea that was in the mind of Christ that the way to beget kind treatment on the part of others is to give them kind treatment first.

Many people believe that doing unto others as they would have others do unto them is all right, but they neglect to add the corollary that you must do it first.

It looks as if it would take some time yet to get the idea in the minds of people that the way to keep from being attacked by others is not to attack them and not to be able to attack them.

The idea of the United States arming itself to the teeth is quite a popular one among certain classes. They do not take into account the utter futility of this program as proved during the late war and the fact that preparation for war in the way of armament can easily become an intolerable burden.

The best way to get rid of war is deliberately to turn our back upon it and the only thing we should do in the way of armament is to so arrange our affairs that the forces of peace can be quickly mobilized in the event of national danger. Our Army and Navy, for instance can not be too big, if they are all employed in constructive peacetime work and can be easily switched into war at short notice, but to maintain them as a force merely drilling and preparing to destroy is to subject ourselves to the old-world burden of armament.

DANIEL L. RAPELJE

Daniel L. Rapelje, of 104 Lincoln avenue, died about noon today at a local hospital where he had been a patient since he came home from Florida where he had spent the winter, having been taken ill while in the south. The deceased was a member of the Richmond order of Masons the members of which organization will have charge of the funeral services at the Richmond Congregational church at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. The body is at present at the Hubbard chapel.

The funeral services will be conducted under the auspices of the Richmond Masonic lodge. Mt. Clemens members of the lodge are also requested to attend

For a number of years Mr. and Mrs. Rapelje have been coming to St. Cloud during the winter months. They were here during the season just passed and only recently, owing to the condition of Mr. Rapelje's rapidly failing health, returned to their home in Mont Clemens, Mich. The above clipping from a paper of that city was sent to the Tribune. While his death was not unexpected however universal regret will be felt with news of his passing.

FLASHES OF FLORIDA FACTS

By MORRIS FOLSOM

Florida Highways

Chairman F. A. Hathaway of the State Road Department says: "Florida is building her highways on the pay-as-you-go plan, and has not issued one dollar in state bonds for roads. Already such progress has been made in the building of Florida's roads that the motorist can enter the state from a half dozen or more points from the north and northwest, and reach the important cities and towns on both her coasts without once leaving modern improved highways. Her system of roads has been laid out so that Florida connects up with all important trunk lines and national highways touching her borders, making continuous ideal motor tours.

"Florida's unexcelled climate, sports, such as fishing and hunting, her sunshine and natural beauty have long drawn millions of people within her frontier—even before the day of the automobile—and our railroad and boat lines were inadequate to handle the traffic. Good highways reaching out in every direction and touching the interior and coast towns throughout the peninsula with opportunity uninterrupted for pleasure driving, will prove an added attraction and make Florida the most popular tourist state in the Union, and what is more—many thousands will, after viewing the state's natural resources and advantages, build homes in Florida and take up their permanent residence in this wonderful state."

Your Bonds

If you have any Second Liberty Loan bonds arrange to have them redeemed as interest will close on November 15, 1927. The outstanding amount is $1,700,000,000. The record shows that $30,000,000 of United States bonds of other issues are in the hands of the public, on which interest has ceased. Look through your list of securities and see if you have any of this class.

No Crime Wave

Clarence Darrow, the famous criminal lawyer of Chicago, who comes to Florida every winter, when the winds blow cold from Lake Michigan, says there is no crime wave, in which he flatly contradicts statistics compiled by the Chicago crime commission. New crimes are being constantly created by new laws, he says. Besides there is more publicity to crime now than ever before.

"Statistics," he declares, "do nothing more than present a fair sample of the results of poverty, hard luck, ignorance, maladjustment, and destiny that in some form come to light in every great city filled with the flotsam and jetsam of humanity."

He believes trades should be taught in the schools.

"Most boys like to use their hands, and the proper training for trades should be begun when very young. It is seldom that a mechanic enters on a life of crime. He forms habits that keep him safe.

"The child is born with the same instincts that move all other animals. When he wants something he feels the urge to take it in the easiest way. It is only training that teaches him that he may get things one way, but not another. His training must be developed into habits. The life of a child is a conflict between primal emotions and social restrictions, and he must be fortified, not alone by teaching, but by habits, if he is to live by the rules that society lays down. Intelligent teachers and wise parents know what this means. It is only merely a boy carefully trained and fitted for life is sent to jail."

He Is Satisfied

Charles F. Leach, sage of Cherokee Farms in Jefferson county, writes to the Florida Farmers, "I am an old man with a considerable future behind me, but as I look down the short end of the lane of life remaining, I can see nothing but a rosy sunset, for my lot has been cast by a kindly providence in pleasant places.

"The other side of Jordan may be bright as bright can be but I ain't faultin' this old world: it's good for me."

Incidentally it may be said that Mr. Leach is a native of the state of New York, but farmed "out west" before coming to Florida.

Florida Fisheries

Senator Fletcher, in a request made to the United States department of commerce for increased aid for the fishing interests of our state, was told by the department that: "Recent figures of annual production in the Florida fisheries show a yield of over 160,000,000 pounds valued at $5,710,000. There are, however, disquieting symptoms of decline in the actual abundance of the supply. The shad and river herring are seriously depleted, the sea trout fishery has been constantly declining since 1897, and several other fisheries of somewhat less importance are showing signs of serious reduction despite a continued increase of fishing effort and demand, as indicated by the price of fish.

"The seriousness of the situation in Florida is emphasized by the fact that nearly four-fifths of Florida's fisheries depend upon shore and river fishes for their supply. Unlike the great world fisheries such as those for cod, haddock and herring, these shore fishes are limited in abundance and being within easy reach are especially subject to over-fishing. But they are likewise more subject to control and the hope appears to be well founded that their continued productivity may be safeguarded by the application of scientific principles of fishery husbandry.

"Our people are rapidly coming to the conclusion that scientific investigations of the fisheries are essential to the proper husbanding of our fishery resources."

Florida by establishing hatcheries expects to maintain a supply.

Plenty of Opportunities

Now and then some one says there are no opportunities in these days. Why, there are ten openings for effort now where there was one in Washington's day, and a hundred now to one in the awful times of William the Conqueror. If you speak the language of Shakespeare and milton and Webster, and conform to the rule that is golden, laid down by Zoroaster, Menu, Buddha, Confucius and The Christ, each and all of us are kings with opportunities reaching to us as eagerly as the hands of Monte Cristo extended skyward accompanied by the cry "The World is Mine."

The world is ours, as much as one can make use of. There are towns and cities to be built, trees to be planted to bears fruit and shade the traveler; farms and gardens to be carved out of the wilderness; broad acres to be tilled for food and clothing; railroads and ships to be built and operated; public highways to be made and maintained; machines to be put to work to meet the multitudinous calls of commerce; there are new songs to be written, as well as new poems and books; there is need of new schools and teachers; there are fallen ones to be lifted up; more kind words to be spoken; more cheery "good mornings" to be uttered; more smiles to be scattered, and greater effort made to instill respect for law in the minds of all. Cecil Rhodes once said: "There is so much to do and the time is so short."

Knows His Business

Frank Whitman tells the DeLand News of what is being done on the Reed farm of twenty-five cultivated acres at the Athens of Florida. In addition, Mr. Reed has twenty-five acres on which he grazes a dairy herd of forty cows. An average of sixteen employes are working the farm and dairy and they, with their families and the Reed family, make up the complement of forty people. In September, 1926, planting began on this farm, and up to May 1, this year, crops have been raised and sold locally of blackberries, cucumbers, spinach, kohlrabi, onions, beets, Swiss chard, mustard, radishes, peppers, beans, egg plant, parsnips, parsley, okra, etc. Fine stands of watermelon, cantaloupe, cucumbers, sweet and field corn and tomatoes, are still to be picked and marketed. In all there will be thirty-five kinds of vegetables and field crops marketed.

At this time all the products of the Reed farm are marketed locally. Three trucks are running day and night into the city with garden products and milk. The latter is delivered twice a day to the stores and local residents. Four hundred quarts a day is the output of the herd at present. As an excellent example of what can be done on a small piece of "Florida sand," Mr. Whitman says he knows of nothing to equal it—not anywhere. It means that one person—who works—can get a living and a little bit more on five-eighths of an acre of land intensively and properly cultivated.

The Flood

The flood in the Mississippi valley is the worst in history. A half million people are in distress and danger. A vast area of farm land is under water and no crops can be raised this year on a large part of it. Homes and live stock have disappeared. Words cannot adequately describe conditions. In addition, recent wind storms have added to the loss of life and of property. Money is urgently needed.

In Confidence

CONFESSION—AND THE PENALTY

Dear Miss Fix:—

When I was nineteen years old I fell in love with a man who succeeded in convincing me that love was only worth while when it was free. Before long I realized my mistake and determined to live right after that, and I have. No one else knows of my mistake—not even my family. Now I am engaged to a man whom I love dearly. I wonder if I should tell him of my past. G. E.

Yours is a problem which no advice of mine can help you solve, for as far as the woman is concerned in such cases, it is a question of being miserable if you do make confession, and miserable if you don't.

Frankly, I fail to see the wisdom of telling the man you love of your past. If you don't confess, at least you will be the only one who will be unhappy—and that unhappiness will not be lasting. If you do confess, the man you love will suffer with you, for even though he will forgive you, and marry you anyway, he will never forget. He will be haunted always by the memories of what you have told him. And he will have to be a bigger man than most men are if he doesn't reproach you with your past and remind you of it when he is angry with you.

Ignorance May Mean Happiness

Personally, I do not believe the question of right should enter into the matter at all, for there is no more real reason why a woman should confess every detail of her past than there is why a man should tell her of every time he has strayed off the straight and narrow path.

Few men are foolish enough to bare their past lives to the woman they marry. Moreover, no woman expects him to, nor does she want him to, for she prefers to remain in ignorance of those things that would only mean torture to her. It is only when the case is reversed, and it is the woman who has a dark stain on her past life that she wonders if she should tell the man who wants to marry her about it. The woman, of course, feels that she must do so because of the double standard of morals, and she nearly always tells everything to the man before marriage.

Perhaps it is true that a couple who know the worst about each other start on their new life together with a firm foundation of honest understanding, but certainly that understanding will not bring them closer together in affection. Rather, it is an understanding that sweeps away the last illusion—and leaves them face to face with realistic facts. That little ghost of the past, once called into being, will never be entirely banished.

Forget the Past—Make the Future

What you have done does not matter so much as what you are going to do. If your past life had in it something that would reach out and reflect in some way on the man you are going to marry, then you would be bound to tell him about it.

But yours was nothing but a folly committed in your youthful ignorance, and your tears of remorse have washed away your little sin. You will perhaps be a better wife because of it. Certainly you will be a wiser mother and more careful in protecting your own daughter, because you know from bitter experience how easy it is for a young girl to make a blunder in her youth, when life and love are calling to her.

Confession is always weakness. It takes a strong man or woman to refrain from sharing their burden with somebody else, but the brave soul holds its own secrets—and suffers its punishment in silence.

WHO'S WHO.

Jeanne Beaufort, daughter of a Virginian, swears vengeance against the North for the deaths of her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She is enrolled as a spy for the Confederate government and instructed to use the wiles of her sex to bring.

Parson John Kennedy, a Union spy, within the power of the South. Discovered in the act of spying upon the group of Secret Service agents of whom Kennedy is the leader, Jeanne is given the alternative of death or marriage to one of their number. They are all masked, but Jeanne rejects one volunteer and chooses another of the eleven as her husband. To herself, she calls him Irony. Parson Kennedy performs the ceremony and the bride and groom, ignorant of each other's names and she not even knowing what he looks like, sign the marriage certificate "Mary Smith" and "John Jones." As witness the group sign as follows:

John Kenedy, D. D.

G-WG-L	H-RD-M
A-NK-S	P-PA-G
G-RD-A	J-NS-F
J-WG-A	P-BN-S
F-WG-S	W-BE-H

They leave her bound and disappear.

Henry Morgan, a Southern officer and spy for the Confederacy, is in love with her but she rejects his advances. One day getting a letter signed "your husband," Jeanne realizes that her identity is known. Disguising herself with a brown wig and staining her face, Jeanne assumes the name of Alice Trent, she goes to Baltimore to carry on her work. She is unaware that a real "Alice Trent" lives in Baltimore.

John Armitage, a Union officer, rescues Jeannes from a drunken man. Jeanne induces Morgan to abduct Kennedy so that she may question him about the names on the certificate and about a curious tattoo mark on the arm of the man she married. Armitage rescues him, but Jeanne escapes. She sees placards announcing a reward for her capture, "dead or alive."

General Armitage, father of the Captain, is discussing plans for the final campaign against Richmond when Jeanne, attempting to steal them, is captured. Though she is in boy's clothes, Captain Armitage recognizes her, but says nothing, and is bound to face a firing squad in the morning.

Armitage helps Jeanne to escape and she makes her way back to her home. It is now the Center of a Confederate encampment. Beatries bring word that a Union spy is on the grounds.

The spy attempting escape is killed. Jeanne reads a dispatch in his pocket, indicating that he was G-RD-A and on his arm sees the tattoo mark. She now believes that he was her husband. Morgan is discovered to be a Confederate spy and swears vengeance on Kennedy. Jeanne hopes to obtain, by torture if necessary the truth about her marriage from Kennedy. The Parson and Armitage accordingly are kidnapped and taken to a deserted cabin. There, bound, they are seated when Morgan lights a short fuse attached to a powder barrel.

CHAPTER IX

That fiber which holds the stout heart impervious to ordinary perils—and Kennedy and Armitage were men of the stoutest of hearts—began to disintegrate in the face of this horror.

To die in the fury of physical contest is nothing; indeed, death is forgotten.

But to sit still, to reach out mentally and anticipate, is a thousand times to die! Armitage closed his eyes. It is a strange face that, when confronted by immediate death of the catastrophe order, instinctively we close our eyes.

Perhaps Kennedy closed his eyes, too; maybap he took sardonic pleasure in eyeing the dancing sparks. There might have been a prayer on his lips.

An unexpected gust of cold night air, striking Armitage's forehead, caused his to open his eyes. The door of the cabin was open. He saw a slender youth enter and step upon the fuse.

"Is it you, Jeanne Beaufort?" asked Kennedy.

"Yes, Parson Kennedy, it is Jeanne Beaufort. It is the woman upon whose head you set a price, dead or alive. It is the woman you broke and dishonored for doing for her cause what you were doing for yours."

She gazed down somberly at the cropped gray head so near her feet.

"Have you a prayer that you can recall?"

She then ran over to Armitage and fought the knots with her fingers and teeth. When she had done, he was free to walk, but his hands were still tied behind his back.

"You are free, Captain Armitage. You are not here through any act of mine. You saved my life once; I pay the debt. A life for a life; we are quits."

"You are a woman and you would let this man die horribly?" he asked incredulously.

"For the evil he has done me, yes."

"I too was guilty."

"In what way?"

"I was there—that night."

The dark eyes merely rose to the level of his own. Everything was perfectly clear and understandable now. The eyes of Jeanne Beaufort and Alice Treat were exactly alike.

"Hurry!" she cried impatiently. "They will be returning if we wait too long."

"I saved your life that night in the hills."

"Hurry!" was all she said.

"We were madmen. We were none of us accountable for what we did."

"I was," interposed Parson Kennedy. "So be off son. She will blow me up—and see me forever in her dreams! Let her go ahead, then; and always at her side will be my shadow. Be off."

Armitage backed toward the chair and sat down on the edge of it. "Both of us or neither of us," he said.

"Oh!" That monosyllable expressed anger, impatience, despair. Jeanne clenched her hands fiercely.

"Fool," growled Kennedy. "How often have I told you that I'd rather die than live? Haven't I called to Death a thousand times, to see him mock me?"

Jeanne looked down at her enemy with reluctant admiration. This gray man who had called to Death a thousand times and been denied awakened the old inherent sense of chivalry. She turned to Armitage.

"Your word of honor not to touch me."

"I give it."

"I will let him go. Let him remember that it was I that gave him his life, even as I would have taken it, indifferently."

She untied Armitage's hands. He felt the tremor of her fingers, but in no wise comprehended its origin. As for Jeanne, since this was to be the last time she was ever to see this man, a terrible, almost irresistible desire asked her to throw her arms around his neck and tell him that she loved him, loved him!

Armitage rubbed his wrists energetically to take away the sting of the hemp. Then he freed Kennedy, who was really helpless, and dragged him outside the cabin. Jeanne broke off the fuse half a foot from the keg, applied the candle, and darted from the cabin.

As Armitage led Kennedy out of the danger zone he was thrown violently to the ground. The earth had opened up, and hades had stretched a fiery arm toward heaven, to withdraw it in a cascade of sparks and flaming debris.

In the meantime Morgan, prey to singular emotion, waited impatiently for Jeanne? Where had she gone? Had she any idea that two men instead of one were in that cabin?

Came the thud of hoofs. The rider was Jeanne. She drew up at his side.

"Where have you been? What has delayed you? Why did you come from that direction?" he demanded suspiciously.

"You lied to me, Morgan."

"I?"

"Yes. You lured Armitage into this without warning me."

"Good riddance!"—all his old jealousy rising.

"Well, you overshot the mark, thank God! I let them both go."

"You—what?"

"They are free."

"But the cabin!"

"Oh you were waiting to see the spectacle, and I did not wish to disappoint you wholly."

"You love Armitage!" He leaned over to close her wrist, but she swerved her horse.

"Yes, I love him. What then?"

"Well, before God, you're unlucky! You can never, never marry John Armitage. You are mine, mine!"

Quickly and crudly he dug his spurs into his horse and fled to avoid the breaking of the verbal dam, the ruination of all his carefully laid plans.

In another moment he would have told her everything for the sake of making that upright figure droop.

Armitage, restored to his father's division, at President Lincoln's intercession, plunged eagerly into his work.

Shortly after his arrival the entire army began its historic movement southward, toward Richmond; and incidentally John Armstrong entered a danger-zone of a different sort. A detachment of Federal troops moved out to intercept a train of munitions. They captured it near a small station.

On the rear platform of the station stood a number of cotton bales. From under the newly arrived freight cars a boyish figure came forth cautiously, crept toward the bales and dodged in among them, wriggling close to the window, which was open.

At the same time, under Armitage's order, a new Federal operator took the telegraph key and hammered out a few friendly greetings to the man at headquarters to prove that he could send tolerably well.

The office was now deserted except for himself. He slouched in the chair and lighted his pipe.

"If you move or utter a sound, I'll shoot!" said a quiet voice over his shoulder. "Right about face! Now, march up to that clothes-press, and remember that it is death if you speak!"

A woman's voice! It was only when the operator felt himself propelled forcibly into the stuffy clothes-press that he realized this was no unsubstantial nightmare.

Jeanne, for it was she, wrenched the clacking key from the screws. Next she smashed the battery-jars.

She arose and glanced out of the east window—and beheld Captain Armitage! He was coming along the platform, scribbling as he walked.

Armitage, Armitage, of all men! From the door of the baggage-room the spy saw the unmanned engine stood a dozen feet beyond the first coach.

Armitage briskly entered the station and made for the door of the operator's room. Locked! He shook the handle violently.

"Hey, there, Clark; unlock the door!" he cried impatiently.

No one replied. Armitage, vaguely alarmed, smashed a panel and burst into the office.

He ran to the clothes-press and swung back the door. The operator lurched into his arms, gasping.

Then came a fusillade of musket shots. Armitage let go the operator and ran outside.

He grasped the situation instantly. The engine was running away. He saw the head and shoulders of the spy who had accomplished this amazing coup in the midst of fifteen hundred men. He fired three shots from his revolver.

One struck the steam-gauge above Jeanne Beaufort's head; the second shattered the forward cab window, the third lodged in her arm. She sank with a stifled cry to the metal flooring.

Twenty miles to go! For half an hour to fight off this faintness, this horrible pain! Could she do it? She would do it!

In despair Armitage returned to the station. The telegraph out of commission, the engine gone—they were trapped!

How Jeanne rose above pain and faintness during that twenty miles she never could explain. She just did it; that was all. The final wrench between sensibility and insensibility came when she was forced to stand up to close the throttle.

From the rushes at the left of the embankment rose a score or more of Confederates, headed by Morgan himself.

"Boys, she done it!" he cried. "Fifteen hundred Yankees trapped like a rat in a hole!"

But Morgan's jubilation was greatly dampened when he beheld the huddled figure on the cab floor, the drenched sleeve, the bloody hand.

"Jeanne? By God, they've shot her! A stretcher!"

Morgan lifted her again and gently laid her head upon the improvised stretcher and ordered the bearers to carry her to the knoll where the horses were tethered.

As Morgan walked beside her Jeanne began to babble murmurously. Morgan bent his head and caught an intelligible sentence. It straightened his spine and wiped out the tenderness in his face instantly.

"John, you shot me! . . . How could you!" Immediately the low babble of incoherent phrases began again.

Armitage, and back yonder, and his bullet had done this work! Always that man was crossing his path. Oh, they must meet some day, in true colors, face to face; and then God help Armitage!

One day, as she lay recuperating, Morgan gave her a sheet of paper. "I had hard work getting this—it is what you asked for," he said.

When he had left she opened the sheet. It was the list of the names of the eleven!

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By KEITH L. BROOKS
(Managing Editor "The King's Business," Secretary Correspondence Courses of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles)

JUNE 19, 1927

PETER TEACHES GOOD CITIZENSHIP

LESSON TEXT—1 Pet. 2:11-17; 4:1-5.

The portion selected by the lesson committee has to do with the pilgrim character of the children of God, rather than "good citizenship" in general. The Christian's abiding citizenship is in heaven (Phil. 3:20), but surely this does not mean that he is to shirk all responsibilities here on earth.

The believer has an earthly citizenship which is to be kept in harmony with his heavenly one. This is the patriotism of the soul. A man who lives as though his voting place is heaven will certainly be an ideal citizen here on earth, doing everything within his power to uphold righteousness and to oppose evil.

The Christian, however, can be an ideal citizen only insofar as he remembers his pilgrim character. He is on a journey through this world, and therefore not living for its lusts nor looking for its rewards. As a sojourner in a strange land (2:11), he lives to reflect credit upon the country to which he belongs and to honor his King. The world has a right to expect that the man who claims heaven for his home should have heaven's ways about him.

The instructed Christian knows that the powers that be are ordained of God (Rom.13:1, 2), and that the only possible excuse he can have for not obeying the law of the land is that it requires him to do what the Word of God says he must not do.

"For the Lord's sake" (2:13) he is to submit to ordinances and governors. The man who looks upon civil authorities as of the devil, an encroachment made by the rich and by political schemers upon the rights and welfare of others, certainly knows nothing of the Bible. "There is no power but of God" (Rom. 13:1). Christianity recommends no particular form of government. God often deals with a people by giving them hard taskmasters, but the result ultimately is for good.

The Bible leaves the Christian free to enter, as a spirit of good, into any form of government. Where Christianity prevails, its tendency will ever be to abolish hurtful laws and institutions. The fundamental principle of Christianity is the responsibility of living for the helping of others, recognizing the equality of all men before God.

"Submit to every ordinance," (2:13) says Peter and Paul declares to those living when Nero was on the throne that "whosoever resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God" (Rom. 13:(2). That distinctly forbids a Christian having part in any revolutionary action. To plot the demolition of a government, or to partake in a movement of violence against the authorities, is utterly condemned by the Bible.

Does this mean that one is to look upon a drunken official as a representative of heaven? Indeed not! Action within the limits of the existing laws we may employ, but to take law into our own hands is to invite condemnation (Rom. 13:2). We also assume then when an unfair official commands that which is wrong, obedience to God is to take precedence, for a Christian is not to do evil for any man.

Governors and kings are sent by Him for the punishment of evil doers" 2:14). It may be said that as a class rulers are on the side of order and right. Civil authority in its most distorted form seldom favors wrong as wrong, or punishes right as right. "Fear God. Honor the king" (2:17). But the fear of God comes first. We cannot keep a testimony for Christ and do that which is morally wrong for any man. Where such questions arise, one needs wisdom beyond his own. Personal judgment is apt to be biased when a man is acting a judge of his own case. The light of God's Word, and the combined judgments of those who know Christ should be sought. Even though an unjust penalty is inflicted, if taken in quiet submissiveness, who knows what God may accomplish? While Paul wrote to Christians concerning their civil duties, he was in prison because he would "obey God rather than man." In fact, there would have been no church at all but for the fact that the Son of God suffered unjustly.

God's will is that Christians should stop the mouths of opponents of the Gospel by living like Christ, whatever the surroundings (2:15). One bad example spoils many a precept. Our doctrines are bound to be judged by our deeds.

The man who enjoys spiritual freedom (2:16) is certainly not expected to use it for a cloak of mischief and as a pretense for disturbing the peace of society. The sum of the Christian's duty to men in general is to honor their rights (2:17); to the Church is to love the brotherhood; to the nation is to honor the rulers. In the midst of these exhortations occur two words—"Fear God." This is the common spring of all duty to men.

The fourth chapter exhorts the believer to patience in suffering for Christ's sake. In a world of sin, the godly may not expect to lie in a flowery bed of ease. Two things the apostle insists upon—the cheerful bearing of all kinds of affliction and the careful forbearing of all kinds of sin.

Against the inclinations of the fleshy nature, the Christian is to "arm himself" (4:1) with the mind of Christ and set his heart upon doing the "will of God" (v. 2). Let no one think that by becoming a Christian his old nature is totally eradicated. Instead, he is called to live in arms against it to the end of his life. The yielding of the will to Christ causes the Spirit of God to leap to the Christian's defense and thus, after all, the victorious life is easiest, for the Holy Spirit wins the victory.

The worldly man may think it strange that the Christian "runs not with him to the same excess of riot" (v. 4). He may even ridicule him for his narrowness. Yet he knows nothing of the inner springs of joy in a Christian's; the heart peace he knows as heaven's citizen briefly sojourning in this world; the blessed hope that is set before him of an abundant entrance to the eternal homeland.

Let the Christian therefore live, not only as one who is accountable to earthly authorities but as one "who must give account to Him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead" (v. 5). Before this same Judge, the man who speaks evil of Christians (v. 4) must eventually stand.

The great court day will surely come and all rejectors of the salvation which God has provided will be called to account, first of all, for the refusal of Christ, and then for all their sins, and withal for their reproaches of the godly who would not run with them in the ways of the world.

PITH AND POINT

When in Rome, do as the Romans ought to do.

The love of country needs to be hallowed by faith in a better country, even the heavenly.

A Christian's only real possession in the world is a way out of it.

The world does not doubt Christianity as much as it does Christians.

Sin is a mean guest, for it sets its lodging house on fire (2:1).

Even the saints must be warned against the flesh which (literally—1 Pet. 2:11) "carries on a campaign against the soul."

He serves his country best who serves God best.

He is no patriot who does not consider his countrymen God's creatures and himself as accountable for his actions toward them.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

Who is back of human governments, whatever their form? (Col. 1:16; Rom. 13:1, 2; Prov. 8:15, 16; Dan. 2:21; 4:32; 5:18120; Jer. 27:4-11).

What is to be the Christian's attitude toward the laws of his country? (Rom. 13:1, 5).

What is the Christian's attitude toward revolutionary movements? (Tit. 3:1, 2).

What does God say to those who despise the government under which they live? (2 Pet. 2:10; Jude 8).

What is the Christian called upon to do in relation to the civil authorities? (1 Tim. 2:1-4).

What is the Church's best weapon against unjust conditions? (2 Cor. 10:4).

In the case of unrighteous demands, what is the Christian's proper attitude? (Acts 4:19; 5:29; 1 Pet. 3:13-17.

Love worketh no ill to his neighbor (Rom. 13:10).

A girl in the Sandwich Islands, a convert from heathenism, had a class of children. In order to find out which of them were heathen and which had accepted Christianity, in her simplicity she said to each child in her class, "Do you love your neighbors, even those who are mean to you?" If a child answered "yes," the unsophisticated teacher said, "Then you are a Christian—stand here." If the child answered "No" she said with equal decision, "Then you are a heathen—stand on the other side." Thus did she divide the sheep from the goats, and she was not wrong, for love is the first fruit of the Spirit, the badge whereby all men may know that one is a disciple of Christ.

CITY MANAGER MAKES SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT ON CONDITION CITY AFFAIRS

we are unable to make any of the much needed additions until such a time as we receive from Mr. Peed, as reciever for the Bank of St. Cloud, sufficient funds to pay off some of the most pressing obligations which have been encurred, and which would have been paid off with the funds which were on deposit there, had they not had to close their doors. As it is, unless we can secure some definite date of payment from the receiver, I do not see, at this time, how we can count on doing any work there until next fall, at the earliest.

It has been such extremely dry weather that we have not been able to keep a lot of the streets in shape, and now that it looks as if the rainy season were here, it will not take us very long to get them in shape. In the meantime we have been concentrating on keeping the paved streets cleaned up, and trying to make the city as presentable as possible, cleaning up brush, etc., as well as opening up the main ditches. The power mower and sweeper, and the little machine for cutting the grass along the curb, are all of material benefit.

The shop which we have established at the pound, is daily proving its true worth. We have a very good mechanic in charge, who is keeping the city equipment in good repair all the time. In fact, I expect to begin enlarging the shop during the coming two weeks, which will give more room which we need very badly, and will also allow us to put in some of the equipment which experience has shown that we need.

The electric extension east of the city has been completed, and the electric light crew has been reduced to two men, who will keep on doing some of the necessary maintainance work around the city.

The water crew has been reduced to one men, who spends most of his time making either the occasional water tap, or in flushing the mains.

We find it necessary to clean out the reservoir about every three weeks, and I am of the opinion that it would be of material benefit if we painted the whole inside of the reservoir with the paint which we have used to seal the leakage cracks, as the algae growth is materially hindered where the paint is now. This work can be done in another few weeks as soon as the demand for water is cut down.

As you know, I inserted a notice in last week's paper asking that the consumption of water be cut down for three days, to enable us to measure the wells. The first of June we were pumping about 800,000 gallons of water every twenty-four hours. With the first rains, the consumption was materially reduced until now we are pumping slightly less than 300,000 gallons every twenty-four hours. The new well was measured last Friday, as it was almost an impossibility to measure the old well, since the pump would have to be lifted out, and the head was 20 feet and 3 inches. One hour of pumping did not reduce the head, so I am satisfied that we have plenty of water at all times. The notice was put in the paper so that we could be sure that the supply was not diminishing, and was largely a measure of "Safety First."

As we can, we are going ahead and painting all the city cars and trucks a uniform gray, and will soon have this equipment so that all city property can be readily distinguished.

There is one thing which I think should be done, and I ask your serious consideration of it. I have talked with some of the authorities of various cities, and they all state that all who are connected with the city in any capacity, have the electric service free. This would affect twelve people, and in view of all the conditions, about which you are familiar, I would recommend that this action be taken. It has proved, in other cities of a like size, that beneficial results are obtained, and I am certain that when you consider the cost, against what we would receive in increased service through better feeling, that the city would gain as time goes on.

I expect, unless something radically wrong happens, or extremely bad weather sets in, that the sewer system will be all tested and ready for final acceptance by the end of this week, and we are preparing to send out the bills for the sewer connections, which we cannot collect until the system is ready for use. As you know, we had to finance these connections from the bond fund, and part from the general fund, so I hope that those concerned will dispose of the bills at once. I would suggest that where the plumbers make application to put in plumbing in any of the properties concerned, that they be responsible for the bill, and that same be paid at the time the permit is secured. It will generally be only a few number of days until the job of plumbing is completed, and I do not see where it will be any financial burden to be carried, especially as the connection charge must be paid before the sewer is used, and as we must have the money to pay off the contractor and to replace that which we must take from the general fund.

We had quite a few Acts passed by the legislature, which affect St. Cloud, and I give a brief summary below:

An Act validating the issuance of the $50,000 bond issue.

An Act validating the issuance of the $120,000 bond issue.

An Act permitting the issuance of bonds for the full amount of the estimates due the contractors upon the completion and acceptance of their work which, of course, will not exceed the amount of the assessment roll in any case.

An Act permitting the city to improve the boulevard, at least that portion between Massachusetts and Columbia avenues, and to issues bonds to pay for the work in accordance with the terms of Chapter 9298, under which we are now working.

An Act permitting the city to improve the lake front in general, with piers, or other improvements as set forth fully in the Act, and which can be accomplished either by a millage as set by the city manager, or by referendum, and general bonds.

An Act authorizing the city to build white ways and issue bonds.

An Act legalizing the issuance of a total of $10,000 in warrants, which amount cannot be exceeded at any one time.

An Act was also presented, from which I have not yet had the returns, completing the Atlantic Coast Line railroad to open, grade and maintain the crossing as we ask for them.

A close study of these acts will show that they all, except of course, the bond validations, interlap, and that the city now has power to carry on as and when the occasion shows it to be necessary in the future.

Respectfully,

GEO. M. MITCHELL.

A Growing State

Florida is the only growing state, that is one adding to its landed area. In the south part the marine polyp is busy building up reefs or coral keys in the sea. The many keys or islands around the south end of the state contain thousands of acres of land and most of the lime crop of the state is grown on the keys. The lime is a small variety of the citrus family of fruits and is used in the making of a very popular drink.

M. E. CHURCH CHILDREN'S DAY GRETCHEN'S WONDERFUL ADVENTURE

The Children's Day program at the Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday evening, presented the story of a little girl named Gretchen who was so poor that she did not like to go to school because she had to wear shabby clothes. One day she strayed away from school to the woods, where she soon fell asleep. Elves and fairies appeared and questioned her. They summoned the queen of the fairies who told the little girl of the wonderful fund that the Methodist church had to loan to boys and girls, without interest, to enable them to complete their education.

FLORIDA STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

TALLAHASSEE, June 6.—An extra session of the Legislature sometime during the summer to find money for the schools of the state, and possibly for the State Road Department was expected by many members of the law making body as the 1927 session neared its conclusion. The additional one cent a gallon gasoline tax is the cause of it all.

The schools needs, quick money and easy money, and the large majority of the members of the legislature have seen it in gasoline. The school revenue measure with one cent a gallon from gas went through Senate and House like wildfire despite the fact that many members were dubious of the constitutionality of the gas feature. Where the rub comes is a constitutional amendment adopted by the Legislature of 1925 and ratified in November 1926. It specifically sets forth that the only direct levy for schools must be a one mill ad valorem tax. The gasoline tax is a special tax and therefore, many attorney members of both House and Senate assert it will be set aside the moment anyone takes it into court.

Aside from the constitutional feature protests against the increased gas tax are pouring into Tallahassee from all parts of the state. From several quarters come reports that plans are afoot to purchase gas outside of Florida in large quantities for corporation and personal use, which would in the opinion of many, make it unnecessary to pay gasoline tax to the state either for schools or highways. It has been reported that the city of West Palm Beach for many months has been purchasing its gasoline in Georgia in wholesale quantities, paying Georgia's small state tax, and shipping it to West Palm Beach at a saving of $108 per car.

R. J. Bacus, mayor of Sarasota and member of the House from Sarasota county, has stated that his first act upon returning home from Tallahassee would be to investigate the possibility of purchasing Sarasota's gas for municipal use either in Louisiana or Texas because of the apparent huge saving that would be involved under the five cents a gallon tax. Another member of the House attorney for several corporations in his county which consume gasoline in large quantities, has stated that the concerns several months ago investigated the possibility of purchasing their gas outside of the state and shipping it to their plants and discovered that the saving even under the present four cents tax would be enormous. At that time no attempt to every out the plan was made on the ground that gasoline and highway construction were closely allied and that there could be little objection to taxing gas for this purpose. Now, however, he declares, he will advise the industries to purchase their gas outside of the state because of the additional tax for schools.

Members of the legislature who are in favor of highway construction and who have steadfastly opposed everything that would tend to disrupt the road building program, see in the additional gas tax something that may greatly hamper the State Road Department in its work. Purchase of gas outside of the state would reduce the department's revenue by the millions of dollars for the present tax, without the additional one cent, is approximately twenty-five percent of the actual cost of the fuel. Under the new law the gasoline purchaser, if he bought his fuel in Florida, would pay fifty cents into the state treasury every time he purchased ten gallons. Thirty cents of this would go to the state road fund, ten cents to the county road fund and ten cents to the school fund. As a result of the protest against contributing the additional ten cents to the school fund,—a protest taffing the form of the purchase of gas outside of the state,—the state road fund would stand a loss of thirty cents and the county road fund ten cents.

Members of the legislature, who expect a special session during the next few months believe that when it comes the law making body may have to devise ways and means of finding money for the road department as well as the schools for they believe the row brewing over the additional one cent tax may result in wrecking the entire gas tax from stem to stern.

TALLAHASSEE, June 6.—Florida motorists, motor boat owners and industrial concerns consuming gasoline lacked only $38,000 of accounting for half of the state's total revenue from all sources during the calendar year of 1926 in the form of gasoline and automobile license taxes according to an analysis of the receipts just completed by the Florida State Chamber of Commerce. The gasoline tax was collected on a basis of four cents a gallon but under provisions of the new school revenue bill which becomes effective July 1, it thereafter will be increased twenty-five percent, the fifth cent being diverted to the school fund.

The State's total income from all sources during the twelve months of 1926 was $30,951,197.98. Of this sum the gasoline tax and the automobile license tax accounted for $18,617,045.30.

The analysis also disclosed that the 7½ mills ad valorem personal and real property tax, which is applied to motor cars as well as everything else, produced only $5,551,759.33 and a considerable portion of this sum was tax money due in 1925 and collected on the basis of 10½ mills.

The gasoline tax alone produced $11,341,525.97, a sum twice as great as that derived from the ad valorem tax with an additional half million dollars thrown in for good measure.

Even the automobile license tax was greater than the ad valorem tax, by more than $1,250,000, the license tax having produced $6,865,521.30.

From the additional one cent gas tax which becomes effective July 1 proponents of the school revenue measure have figured they would obtain for educational institutions something in the neighborhood of $2,300,000 annually. On this basis, if the consumption of gasoline is as great this year as last, gasoline would produce around $13,000,000, since the five cent would be effective for only one half of the year.

Statisticians have figured that the motor car, motor boat and industries consuming gasoline stand to contribute at least three fifth's of the state's entire revenue during the calendar year of 1927 if the additional one cent tax holds good.

Dorothy Britton of New York was crowned Queen of the Universe in the Galveston, Texas International Beauty Pageant—which made her happy as you can see.
